Jarell is an associate in Tonkon Torp's Business Department. His practice focuses on contract drafting and negotiation, corporate governance, regulatory compliance, and transactional work – from securities offerings and other capital raises to mergers and acquisitions.

Jarell is a 2017 graduate of Lewis & Clark Law School. During law school, Jarell worked summers at Tonkon Torp, engaging primarily with financial services and fund clients. For nearly seven years (prior to and during law school), Jarell worked at a financial services firm registered as a broker-dealer and investment adviser. His responsibilities included reviewing securities offerings, negotiating distribution and other agreements with issuers and product sponsors, and assisting with product-related inquiries as part of SEC and FINRA examinations.

When he is not in the office, Jarell likes to explore the outdoors and take advantage of the great scenery of the Pacific Northwest: whether on a golf course, atop a ski hill, or at a local winery.

Representative Matters

Sale of Form Factory, Inc. — The transaction involved the acquisition of our client, Form Factory Inc., a retail cannabis processor, by Acreage Holdings, a publicly traded company in Canada. The transaction presented complex issues inherent in an international transaction where publicly traded shares serve as consideration for the acquisition of a multi-state cannabis company.

International Sale of Interest in Dental Equipment Company — Represented dental parts and equipment company in the sale of one-third of its interest to a public company in Japan. In a truly global transaction, the Tokyo, Japan-based investor had legal counsel in New York, with their principal attorney working out of Hawaii. An insurer in London underwrote the representations and warranties insurance. Tonkon Torp's M&A group assembled a team of Tonkon Torp attorneys to assist in additional intellectual property, tax, and labor and employment issues important to the success of the transaction.
